

ODD WAY LICENSE TAGS HANG ON AUTO CLUE IN HOLD-UP

Brooklyn Realty Man, Held as Suspect in Borden Robbery, Says He's Innocent.

Nathan Rotnik, a real estate man living at No. 101 Second Place, Brooklyn, who was arrested yesterday at Hamilton Avenue and Bush Street, Brooklyn by Detective Morrison, is held by the police in connection with the hold-up and robbery yesterday of William Fowler, cashier and paymaster of the Borden Milk Company distributing plant at No. 400 West 5th Street. The bandits got $2,353.52 and escaped in a small touring car. A strange situation by a business man nearby was told by the police today. This man saw an automobile near the Borden plant a few moments before the hold-up. He examined the car minutely, even to the point of noticing that the front and rear numeral plates were hung in a peculiar manner. He jotted the number down on a paper bag and turned it over to the police who, using his description, stopped the small car of Rotnik in Brooklyn a few hours later. Rotnik denied any connection with the robbery, emphatically saying he was at the West Shore ferry terminal with some crunks at the time of the robbery.

DODGES AUTO, OTHER KILLS.

Hayward, Warned by Horn, Steps Back out of Way to His Death.
William A. Hayward, aged sixty-five, of No. 124 South Elliott Place, Brooklyn, was killed today when run down by an automobile operated by John Manning of No. 274 Baltic Street. Mr. Hayward was struck in the lower part of an automobile when crossing the street in front of No. 124 South Elliott Place and dodged back into the path of a commercial car owned by E. A. Mann of No. 122 Liberty Street, Brooklyn. Manning applied brakes instantly, but his automobile had passed over the elderly man.

George L. Messinger of No. 342 East 15th Street, Flatbush, identified the body and said Mr. Hayward had been employed by Latham & Moore of the Produce Exchange.

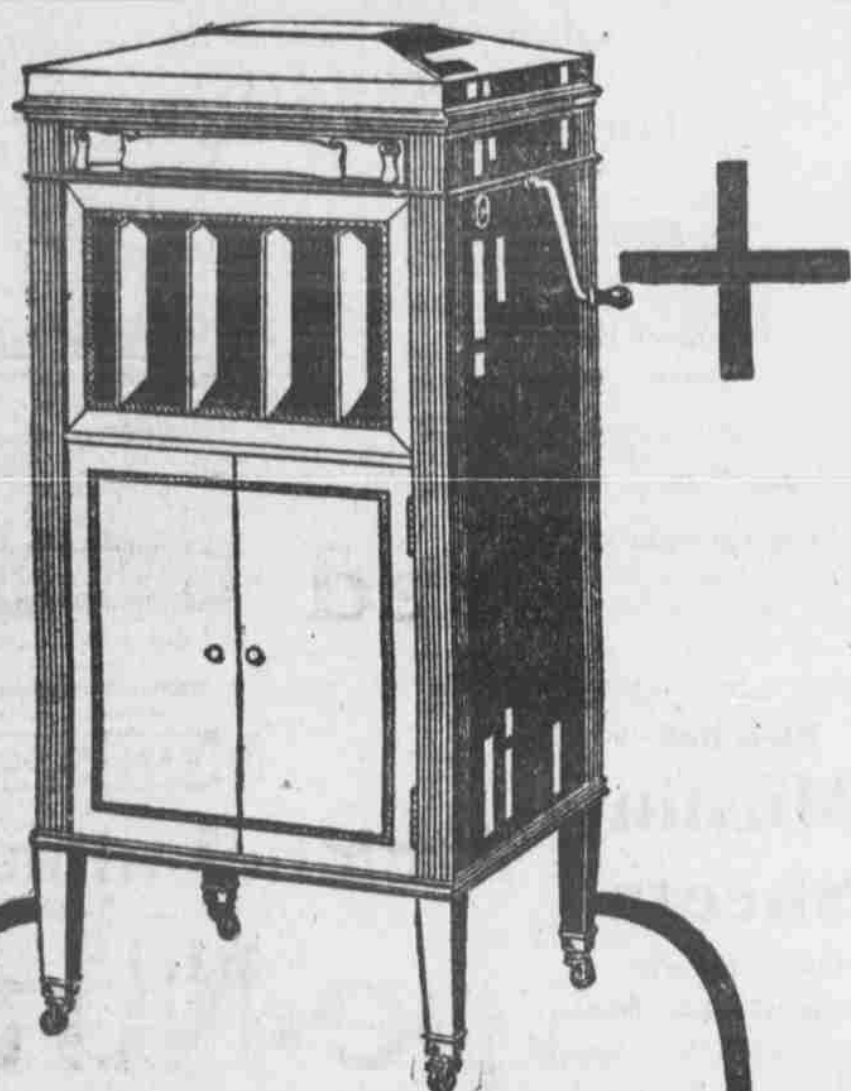

Halibut, Free in the Ocean— 40 Cents a Pound on Land

The further you go into these comparisons the cheaper
your milk
becomes

THE oceans are full of edible fish free for anyone who will go out and get them. Yet they cost you so much more than Sheffield Milk. Take halibut for example. Most everybody eats halibut at 40 cents a pound. A halibut steak is 76% water and, say 4% waste. That leaves 20% solid food. Milk contains 12% solid food. At 5 1/2 cents a pound for milk and 40 cents a pound for halibut it looks as if your fish was costing 4 1/2 times as much as your milk.

In making these comparisons we are figuring the net food value in each case. As to the quality of the food there can be no comparison. Milk stands alone as the only complete food.
